

Toward a Natural Systems Research Methodology

Date : March 27, 2020

I could argue that it was Bowen's research methodology which yielded the novel observation that the family is an emotional unit, and possibly the correct unit of analysis for human behavior and adaptation. This presentation is aimed at more specifically defining the principles behind that methodology so that research on Bowen Theory may proceed into the technological future.